1988 collection Angry Candy holds a mirror to the human condition, and like the portrait of Dorian Grey we see all our corruption and horrors manifest.
As our darkest fears copulate with our most intimate and secret fantasies we look into the mirror and call "Mirror, mirror on the wall...", consumed by the beauty of our own atrocity.

Angry Candy is a 1988 collection of short stories by American writer Harlan Ellison, loosely organized around the theme of death. The title comes the last line of the poem "the Cambridge ladies who live in furnished souls" by E. E. Cummings, "...the/ moon rattles like a fragment of angry candy." The collection contains the short story "Eidolons", which won the 1989 Locus poll award for best short story.

Harlan Ellison Webderland: Book Reviews - Angry Candy

Angry Candy is considered by some to be Harlan Ellison's best collection of short stories. I think Slippage is a tiny bit better, but Angry Candy is powerful. The collection starts with an essay Ellison wrote after the deaths of many friends in a short time period (A list is provided; organized by month of death; human mortality is truly frightening).
