The thriller writer Sam Bourne, the nom de plume of the journalist Jonathan Freedland has revived the political thriller with this brilliant outing To Kill the President. Especially when the President in this book could so easily be the current resident at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, thin skinned not known for paying his taxes, fake news oh and a presidential daughter.

To Kill the President (Maggie Costello, #3) by Sam Bourne

The book's protagonist, Maggie Costello is an experienced White House staffer who discovers the plot to kill the President. She faces the moral dilemma of choosing action that may leave the country in the hands of an increasingly insane President versus committing treason against her country. The ending is most surprising! (No spoilers here.)

Threatening the president of the United States is a federal felony under United States Code Title 18, Section 871. It consists of knowingly and willfully mailing or otherwise making "any threat to take the life of, to kidnap, or to inflict bodily harm upon the president of the United States". This also includes presidential candidates and former presidents. The United States Secret Service investigates suspected violations of this law and monitors those who have a history of threatening the pres
